In this feeling the exercises of which this little book is a report may be said to have had their beginning. Plans began to assume definite form in July, 1905, when a joint meeting of the standing committees of the Church and Society voted to recommend that the anniversary be observed by appropriate public services. Later, formal action was taken by the Church and the conduct of the celebration was placed in charge of the two committees just referred to. As soon as the fact became known that so unusual an event as the celebration of the Two Hundred and Seventy-fifth Anniversary of a church, in this new and changing country, was to occur, liberal notices were given in the public press in Hartford, Springfield, and elsewhere. Thus, when the time arrived, an interest and enthusiasm quite unexpected pervaded the local community, and extended to many in other places, who, for ancestral and other causes, have affection for the Windsor Church.
