The methods required are for the most part simple and well adapted for introduction into small local plants. For lack of time this report must pass by the numerous proposals made during the year for the utilization of other less promising fibers and fibrous wastes. Mention should, however, be made of Perini fiber (Canhamo braziliensis, Perini), recently discovered by Dr. V. A. de Perini, of Rio de Janeiro, and now attracting considerable attention. In its essential features Perini resembles jute. Coming now to the narrower questions of detail in the chemical technology of paper making, we find that the year has been marked by no development of the first importance. Under an arrangement with the American Chemical Society your chemist and his assistants have abstracted all articles appearing in our own or foreign journals relating to cellulose and paper making. A few of these call for mention in this report. The discovery of a cellulose peroxide has been announced by Cross and Bevan, but the existence of the compound has been doubted, and is in fact doubtful on good chemical grounds. The Cross and Sevan method of analysis of fibrous substances has been materially improved by Dean, in so far as it relates to the determination of cellulose. Berge has proposed as a new test for ground wood a solution of 2 grams of para nitraniline in 100 c....
